Mr. Burr received and passed on to the Mayor other bad news. It was a letter from John H. Delaney, Transit Construction Commissioner, saying that to issue to the company that date the company has promised the Public Service Commission to put on 450 more cars during non-rush hours, so as to improve the service. Mr. Delaney wrote that his office would check up the Old Age Ail Traffic Lines.

Mayor Hylan opined that the city's maffic lines were suffering from old age and then Corporation Counsel Burr said that before the Board's inquiry finished he would submit to it engineering studies

All of the testimony yesterday confrom four handicaps competition from subways; increased street traffic, which w impedes cars; changing habit of riders Comptroller Craig said the only surface lines that are profitable are crosstown lines, and that soon north and south lines must go out of business and give way to buses. Mr. Curran again suggested a three cent fare to attract more short trippers to surface cars. Mr. Reed's testimony was that the total funded debt of the New York Railmore short trippers to surface cats.

Mr. Reed's testimeny was that the total funded debt of the New York Railways Company was $58.552,027.19 and that 3 P. After he had reminded the Mayor that "the people of Staten Island are worrying about their car lines, which now are not working. Mr. Curran got this reply from Mr. Hylan:

"Don't start in again with that camouflage this morning."

"The people of Staten Island are still walking, said Mr. Curran.

"The public knows where you stand," "replied the Mayor snapishly. "You stand with the traction interests. You are not going to get away with that here."
